Jeff Douglass, AGPCNP-BC InnovAge Colorado PACE

"I especially enjoy working with seniors because their wisdom, intuition and perspective makes them a delight to work with. I strive to take the time to listen and understand each participant, explain complex diagnoses and treatments, and then partner with them in shared decision making. Every participant and family is unique."

— Jeff Douglass

Jeff earned his Bachelor and Master of Science degrees in Nursing from Columbia University in New York. He is board certified in Adult and Geriatric Primary Care. Prior to joining InnovAge, he worked at Internal Medicine Southwest in Littleton, CO. He has more than 10 years experience working in primary care with complicated veteran and geriatric patients.

Although Jeff spent his middle and high school years in Durango, CO, he has lived in locations across the globe including Hong Kong and Panyu, China; Sydney, Australia; and Guatemala. He has lived in many cities across the United States including Los Alamos, Chicago, Tuscon, Shreveport, the Bronx and Santa Clara.

Jeff is married and has two teenagers and two dogs. He enjoys watching his children participate in sports and music. They also enjoy skiing and hiking.
