Mark Learned, MD

InnovAge Colorado PACE

---

"It is incredibly rewarding to join InnovAge and be part of the interdisciplinary team. The team cares for participants and helps protect them so they can live the best life possible. The compassion of our staff and providers is overwhelming. I am proud to be part of the PACE team."

— Mark Learned

Dr. Learned earned his Medical Degree from the University of Washington in Seattle and a Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology and Organismal Biology from Yale University. He completed a residency in Primary Care Internal Medicine at the University of Colorado Anschutz Medical Campus. Dr. Learned is board certified in Internal Medicine.

Prior to coming to InnovAge, Dr. Learned was the Chief Medical Resident at the University of Colorado. He also worked at Kaiser Permanente as a primary care physician, medical office chief, medical director for Medicaid and charitable programs, and Vice President of primary care, urgent care and behavioral health. He has a passion for clinical leadership positions as a way to help patients and doctors get the most of the medical system.

Dr. Learned grew up in Boise, Idaho. He and his wife, a civil engineer, have three children. The family shares their home with two miniature schnauzers, ten fish and two hamsters. He likes to ski and play ultimate Frisbee. His children play the piano, swim competitively and play baseball and soccer. Dr. Learned acknowledges his sweet tooth, stating that Sweet Cow and Little Man ice cream shops are "Colorado treasures".
